GENERAL McCLELLAN

On the 7th inst., a meeting was held at the aid of the distress in Ireland. J. Hughes, General M'Clellan, Gen. John Dally were the chief speakers. The appearance was the signal for a course of his address he said:—"I am not a politician, but I have some peculiar reasons for feeling interested in all that refers to Ireland (applause.) I have sprung from a poor Irish family, and I have often seen the loyalty of the Irish and their general proved. I have seen Erin side by side with the title of the 'Land of the Wild Geese' and the 'Land of the Living Dead'."
