WOMEN IN NERDWORK.—At the Mc Tonnals' Doublet, on the night of the 10th inst., a large crowd of women, as in former years, gathered on the terrace and the neighborhood. The ground grew so impervious with dirt, upon which the women stood, that the bridge was covered with mud. A few of the women carried with them a small bag, containing a few articles of toilet, and a small tin of ointment, which they rubbed upon their faces and necks. The women were not so much interested in the exhibition as in the mud, and the mud was the cause of the women's coming.
