WASLEYAN METHODIST.

The Superintendent of the Southern (Lower) made special reference to the Duke of Clarence, and the Duke had sustained. The black cloth was draped over the desk, and the National Anthem and hymns were rendered. As there was no chapel, the pulpit was occupied by Mr. Henshaw, Councillor. There was a large gathering present. The preacher made allusion to the death of the Duke of Clarence. He said he could not but be impressed with the fact that the hand of death had been working all week throughout the country. It was a palace and taken away one who was of the affections and hopes of the beloved Sovereign. The circumstances attending this national calamity are so distressing, and I need not dwell upon them to say that I am sure they have produced a mutual degree of the most kind and generous sympathy in our hearts. With your approval, I desire to commend you all to God's merciful care, and to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and that this motion be entered on the Minutes.—This was seconded by Mr Rd. Bouverie, and carried in silence.
