BISHOP MALTBY'S DAUGHTER DIVORCED.—A curious case was tried by Sir Crosswell Crosswell, on Wednesday, in the Divorce Court. A lady named Maltby, the wife of a clergyman at Nottingham, some few years back became a convert to Roman Catholicism, and in 1869, with her two daughters, was residing

Rome. There they became acquainted with a "Baron Zychlinski, who proclaimed himself to be a Russian nobleman, and who seems to have been concerned in some mysterious pecuniary transaction between Cardinal Antonelli and Mrs. Malby. The susceptible heart of one of that lady's daughters yielded to the fascinating attentions of the "Baron," and the couple were married. Shortly afterwards, however, when living in France, the frightful fact came out that the "Baron was no harder at all, but a deserter from a Prussian regiment. When this discovery was made, his wife upbraided him for his deceit, and he behaved to her most cruelly. They separated, and subsequently the Baroness was heard of at Nottingham, in company with another Baroness. On these facts a judicial separation was asked for, and the jury finding a verdict in favour of the lady, a decree nisi for the separation was pronounced by the judge.
