THE CHROMOLITHOGRAPH. A Journal of Art, Literature, Decoration, and the Accompanying Industries. Edited by J. H. Thompson, the partner of the late firm of Day & Son, Lithographers and Engravers, 150 Broadway, New York. The first number of this new publication has just appeared, commencing about each number will be 16 pages, square, in double column, of popular explanatory material, and 16 pages of illustrations and engravings, in single column, of the most valuable and artistic in their kind. The illustrations and engravings in all branches of art, and three full pages of the most valuable and artistic in their kind. The illustrations and engravings are the work of the most successful and accomplished of the great masters of engraving, alternately. 2. A full study, after the best professor, either in landscape, figure, or animal painting, and a full study of the accomplishments of decorative art.

It is the object of this Journal, that relating to the decorative arts, should enlist the liveliest gen-
