This Act provides, gentlemen, that representation is made from six or any Urban Authority, and such a Authority may be a sufficient number of allotments, any Council may be petitioned to put the to operate it, and then an enquiry will be if the Council find that land for allot- ment is required, they will put the Act into operation. The usefulness of this Act is spreading rapidly, as it was stated a few that since the passing of the Act 10,000 have been acquired. Then there was matter of the utmost importance to the class, namely, the fixing of the of the Classes Act of 1890. It was stated at Council that this Act was a sham. If a large property owner, and heard the Inspector reading his report that there were, on that place, and so forth, and he would be sorry to see these defects, you would be likely, however, to be colity, and no harm. The Act me

Now, if any legally qualified medical person, I think a nurse in a state so big as this, or any physician, or any person, or any group of persons, who are for human habitation and the health of the community, and who call on the local authorities do not give it attention, they can file their complaint to the County Council, and then have a report from their inspector, and if there is good ground for complaints will be asked to be made a reference thereto, and the committee is of opinion that practically a closing order ought to be instituted, they give notice to the local authorities to take the necessary steps. This Act has caused a mighty impetus to be effected to the dwellings of the poor class in the County of Hereford. (Here.) Now, I was the technical education officer, and I had previously spoken at length in this division. He would simply like to pass it, as himself, along with others, had Adt'?" Well, so far as Consett was concerned, he was not directly responsible for that. But why did not the Consett speaker pioneer of education, Ald. Jenkins, who was as anxious for the social advancement of the district as any other man in the town, and who is pushing the claims of Consett in every way in this matter? (Hear.) solemn, speaking on the County Industrial said if they had liberal views with charity towards them, they would bail with the greatest interest the causes of these children. And so are kept and educated at these schools, destitute children, whose parents had died of them, or who had got into the hands of authorities in some way, and were sent on to the work of keeping and education. There is about an average of 100 children in the district, their education is completed, they are disposed of in various ways. Some go with their friends, and not a few go for received, to foreign parts, should they be glad to go, and make a fortune, he was glad to get so well in life. (Appendix) There is an enormous institution, the County Asylum, average of about 1,200 inmates, and a staff of male and female servants numbering 204. This institution was visited every month by a committee of the Council, who had carried out their duties in a satisfactory manner. The various responsibilities of the duties the Council had had in relation to the work had been carried out in a satisfactory manner; and should they again do him or returning him, he would continue to do his duty to the best of his ability. It was his intention to make a report to the Council, and he thought it was playing with people's lives to ask them to pledge themselves before him. In conclusion, he would like to tell them what that wise and discreet man, east his influence in the Coleridge I said: "The opinion I have held, and iders have nothing whatever to do with tion, and I have so acted," thus leaving the three concerned. Then, were the communist leaders not intelligent enough to their own choice of a candidate for confidence? He thought they were; and continue to hold the opinion that he had held—that he had had the privilege of acting as intelligent a community as could be throughout the length and breadth of the continent. He would not say that they as all important to have a practical representative, and he would leave the issue with them fullest confidence of being returned at the the poll on the day of election. (Loud)
