METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—The services of the church were continued on Sunday last, with much interest. Two most excellent sermons were preached by the Rev. Mr. Sterling, of Newcastle. The discourses were powerful and eloquent, and showed that the regret to have to record the death of Mr. [illegible] Wilson, late leader of the Westwood of brass band. He had been in an indifferent state of health for several months past. About six weeks ago, he was sent (through the kindness of a relation, of Greenwood, Sackett Bridge), to the Convalescent Home, with the hope that he might recruit his health; but it was soon seen that a fair was against him. He was removed from

by to Newcastle Infirmary, but after enduring institution he gradually grew worse, and died on Sunday, April 29th. Not having relations in this locality, his comrades (the Wood Colliery bandmen), sent one of their men down to the Infirmary to make arrangements for his remains to be brought to his lodge at the colliery. On Tuesday, the 30th, the LANGLEY PARK.—The Langley Park Choral Society.—The Langley Park Choral Society gave their second concert of the season on May last, when Macfarlane's cantata "May" was produced. The work, which is written for voice, chorus, and orchestra, abounded in beauti-ages, the last chorus especially. "The" forming a splendid musical picture. Mrs. B. of Sletburn, as "May Queen," gave a rendering of the solo, "Beautiful May," was evidently much enjoyed. Altogether so was very creditably performed, and numbering some 50 or 60 members, may be
