NOTES.

[By WARRIDEN.]

A Chester-le-Street shopkeeper has published and issued a bill, denying "that he has wrote to the Home Secretary to stop down or playing in public houses". As the poor man has not been

The guardians did wisely and well at their last meeting, in re-appointing Mr. Thomas H. Ross to the chair for the ensuing year. Mr. Ross was also, at the same time, unanimously re-elected chairman of the Board. He has been a member of the Board since its first organization, and has fulfilled the duties of that office for many years, with credit to himself and the Board, and satisfaction to the ratepayers; and there is no reason to suppose that the energy, tact, and consideration which he has shown in the Board, since he has been so long in the office, will be less displayed in so marked a manner previously, will be in any way impinged upon by his future conduct. His unanimous re-appointment confers

The view from the bridge and from the road which pass the entrance gates was not only gorgeous but gladdening after the cold dreary water of the sea. The sun was shining brightly on their eyes upon the pleasant [and beautiful] sight in the bright sunshine. But the demons of destruction were at hand, in the shape of a party of "Whippersnappers." Those illustrious gentlemen—I suppose would be "excellent" if they were not doing anything else—came, saw the daffodils and primroses; straightway dismounted, scaled the park wall, and in less time than it takes to tell, were back over the wall, mounted, and flying off with the cream of the cream of the garden. A very daffodil flower within sight! They literally stamped the place of flowers: There is no earthly

In his opinion, we got such a present from an unknown stranger. I think it was never done before by any gentlemen; but I hope it will be an example to all gentlemen that can afford to support the poor. It is a very good way to help the poor, for "he that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." I must now tell you a story about the gentleman who gave me this present. The gentleman's name is Mr. [redacted] and he provided for us. The smell of it was most agreeable, and I need not tell you that it takes good cooks, and that the gentleman who gave me this present is the best cook in Wearside. Such a cook can make a herring loaf better on a table than many a cook can make a loaf of muton. It is good for a lady to have a good cook, and I am sure that if you had one, you would be one day. "You will be tired of cooking," but she

AY: The latter was on his journey, and give us a call. He will be very heartily received by all that are in the Union. Perhaps your readers will want to know a little about the man who has been so long in the house. Now to make you understand: The good man is the master, and the good lady the mistress. Now, I am going to tell you a little about the dinner. The dinner was a very good dinner, and I am sure you have never sat down to a better dinner in his life: it was so well provided. The smell of it was enough to make a man's mouth water. The good man and the Dr Stables were the chief visitors to see the dinner. The first thing that took the doctor's attention was to see one of the inmates, a lady from the hospital, who had been so long in the house. The doctor smiled which was as good as to say you will

Mr. WALTON WILSON then proposed:—

"That the gentlemen present be formed into a committee to carry out the plan of the restoration of St. Andrew's as a chapel of ease for the parish of Mr. ABERNETHY (farmer) attended the proposition, which was carried on a vote of 10 to 1.

Mr. WALTON WILSON inquired whether, in the event of St. Andrew's Church being restored, it would again become the parish church of St. John's. Mr. John's would remain as the parish Church?—

Mr. ABERNETHY replied that St. Andrew's was originally the parish Church, but when it fell into ruin, St. John's was built on a more convenient site, and was regarded as the parish Church. The question would depend upon the terms of the transfer. Could the restoration be effected on the basis of the original endowment?—

Rev R. W. WILSON: Oh, yes. It was the common belief of the parish that St. Andrew's Church was built in connection of the collapse of St. John's Church; but as a matter of fact services were conducted concurrently in both churches for many years.

The ABERNETHY thought they would be enabled to carry out a scheme of this kind, which would constitute St. John's the parish Church.

A resolution was also passed to the effect that Rev R. W. WILSON, M.P., be invited to preside at the meeting.
