HINTS FOR THE HOME

CHARLES WORKS.—How many characters tested, how many hearts made to ache, but tolerance of a careless word? This habit of talking about people is so common, yet so injurious. Our thoughts, and do not realize the harm the word; others are malicious, and do not care. I have spoken carefully had been taken up, repeated again, until it received the refutation of individual spoken of, when there was no conversation. There are plenty of other subjects, however, and unless one can understand

[illegible][illegible]

KEEP GOOD TEETH.—The chief rule which should be attended to in connection with the use of the teeth are as follows:—The mouth should be rinsed out after every meal and the teeth should be brushed night and morning with a tooth powder. Most persons are unwise in keeping the teeth clean and preserving them from decay by the use of tooth-powder, tooth-brush, neither too hard nor too soft, and water. The teeth should be brushed the water being directed so as to brush the teeth. By attention to simple rules, the teeth will be preserved and will be preserved, but bad habits in personal appearance should be avoided. A good powder is that sold under the name of "Tooth and Gums Chalk," the champer ex-acting a stimulating and refreshing action on the gums are naturally irritable as of tender, and for all others concerned.

AN FARMER FROM URBANA.—Those who hold the law estimate upon their own merits and should be first of all that they cannot judge of others. He cannot himself sufficiently well to presume or to be sure that he is right. He is in a position to do nothing as he begins in debarment. The truth is that we are happily ignorant of our own merits and of our own duties appeal to us as secure, and we shall be humble, and modestly, it is true, with confidence that, if they belong and essentially, in the request ability to perform them. One of the greatest faults of the man is to never acknowledge that he is wrong, and to never attempt to solve or the guilty man with a character of his own. The man who is not an al- policy effect, failure must certainly mean.

OFFICIOUS FRIENDS.

It is full of people who take too warm an interest in you, and are quick to offer advice. Sometimes one is quite willing to wish there was a plant ready to receive the overflow. These people have no sympathy for your troubles; they pay into your religious bank your good looks that you have not; they tell you that you are doing it wrong; they give you advice and instruction that it is to be followed to the letter. It is the officious woman who is the worst offender. Everybody has your ear or your shoe-string, are out of order, who are not. It is the officious woman who is the most unattractive pin to give you with the words, "The sun is shining, everybody is as well as she does so, usually never finding the officiousness only serving to let you go

DET WIN

The average selling price of coal for the three months of January, February, and March, 1885, was $6.04 per ton. The prevailing rate of wages will therefore be reduced by 11 per cent, calculated upon the standard wages of November, 1879.

I turned to look behind me. I list Helen going to find a new and better instrument. I said to your friend,
 I said to that woman,
 My life is a little artifice, as such I like plainly
 I'm proud at the entrance of a city proud

Harry Collins followed the doctor to the for company, and Sarah went up to her mistress to tell her about the ghost while pondering at the cleverness of "her Harry."
But very clever people often overreach themselves, and Collins was no exception in the matter of the ghost.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

THE SMOKEST, — A MEETING AND ITS RESULTS.

Down, the policeman, from information he had note for you sir," said the butler, suddenly.

"me?" exclaimed Simon. "Any answer?"
"sir," replied the man. "A lad brought it,
not wait."
"will keep, then," replied the young man,
"why should anyone write to me? here, s;
he muttered.
as about to open it, notwithstanding his incense, when his attention was diverted by a
"s" from his father; and Simon obeyed it.

SHE KNOWS MORE NOW.
 A sensible society girl married a man who lived in her town, and as she really loved her husband to do all she could to please him, One day she was going to make some nice cider for him, and when he came home she had two bushels of little hard apples piled up for him.
 "Maude," he exclaimed when he saw them,
 "as you put these?"
 "Yes, darling," she replied with a smile.
