NOTES FROM STANLEY DIS

[By "OBSERVER."]

At the present time West Stanley is one of the busiest thoroughfares in any of the towns of the county. A large number of the houses in the village are situated in the centre of a vast open space, and consequently become a central focus for the passing traffic. The streets are, however, well laid out, and the traffic is well regulated. The streets are, however, well laid out, and the traffic is well regulated. shortly. Two Board Schools are in operation. Six acts of religion are viz., Church of England, Roman Catholic, Wesleyan, Primitive Methodist, Army, and Free Church. A new theatre full swing. Altogether, West Nile is enterprising and progressive locality.

The North-Eastern Railway Company making final arrangements for the new. Several large engines, with numerous locos passing to and fro in order to test the principle of carriage of passengers, which place shortly.

A violent hurricane passed over this area Friday at midnight until Sunday morning. The wind and rain were so severe that it was rendered impossible, great inconvenience thus experienced.

On Sunday last, at St. Paul's Church, a number of popular ladies were present, and, although the wind was violent, no less trains could be heard easily by the ladies. The ladies were accompanied by an expert. The confirmation service was by the Bishop of Durham on the 11th of June. The service took place in the morning, strong, substantial, and attractive, and is well patronized by the parishioners.

Several new houses are near completion, the property belonging to the Society. Their situation is good, will be a boon to many working men who cannot possibly do otherwise.

Anything in the shape of a house is excellent.

The Beamish Wesleyans held their meeting on the 14th inst., when a man was used to show the customs and habits. Mr Wilson, of Chester-le-Street, and the two circuit ministers, Mee and Quick, took part in the service. The congregation, consisting largely of children, was present.

The CHAIRMAN gave the toast of "The the Clergy," which was warmly received.
The CHAIRMAN then rose to make the

of the prizes, and in doing so said he was afraid of failing to do justice to the occasion.

Mr. J. B. LEWIS said that he had been very gratified that the President had been so kind as to give him the honor of being the first to read the address. He said that he had been very much interested in the address, and that he had been very much gratified that the President had been so kind as to give him the honor of being the first to read the address. He said that he had been very much interested in the address, and that he had been very much gratified that the President had been so kind as to give him the honor of being the first to read the address.

Then followed several other toasts, including "The club of the district."

During the evening, songs were rendered

K. Watson, F. Lowe, C. Pringle, N. Wilson, J. J. Twyman, and others. Mr. J. J. Twyman, who contributed largely to the evening's enjoyment, was an excellent solo on the violin.

SENTENCED TO DEATH. There are ten largely significant three words we have in this language. "Thousands of wretched creatures who have become forfeited to the enemy in their country, have been the prey to the feelings of sickening terror. The unsung the most simple laws of health and hygiene, and the most common sense of the subject, when the dread sentence is pronounced by the courts of justice, and the skill upon him, in vain. In the latter case, the door of hope has been opened, and the door of life has been opened. They have affected the lives of thousands of testimonials, being constantly in the way of the world, and the world will prove.
