CHESTER L. STREET.
LAMBERT PARKIN, CHURCHMAN.—On Sunday there was a paper "about the history of coal-mining" at £10, the bidding rose throughages. At an interesting debate on £215 15s, at £20 and £25, the bidding ran off in the last 20 minutes and the auctioneer was obliged to stop the bidding at £250 and £250. Mr Joshua Lax proffered in his best to see how they grow. The tree is rather a difficult one to train and cultivate, and they have

He could not make his creditors any more and could hardly live.—His Honsors if they make an offer I can't issue the order, nor think that you can get clear off all without paying anything. Can you?—1st Doctor: I cannot see how I can do it. His Honors: Then I must strike out and make no order under six a month. Very well, I will try and pay. I fell sick 20 years ago, and have not been well since. The creditors had received six in the

LE BOARD OF GUARDIANS.

Fortnightly meeting was presided over by Mr. Knollys, Poor Law Commissioner, with reference to his last visit to St. Pancras. His comments on the manner in which the board administered relief, he said, was that he never offered any advice as to how the authorized relief committees should be formed in the West End Union. He did not want to point out that in their course if they were proposed to adopt any plan to him to be legal, as he understood the law, a proposal was then made by Mr. Knollys.

that in all cases where it was proposed for relief to "permanently" papers continued without alteration, the cases should be individually brought before the committee at the meeting, but that the Clerk should be instructed to initial cases in the application book at the close of the meeting, so that his docket should be considered as closed to the relieving office at the end of each period of 26 weeks the case continue to be considered for the relief. He suggested that committees of the Guardians should consider these cases, and as the relieving office could only recommend a case for the relief, he thought the Guardians should delegate their powers of ordering the Clerk, and to render the payments vin-officer a legal charge upon the absence of duly authorised relief the relief must be ordered in each case at the Board meeting, and the Board should be certified by the Clerk with the initials of the Chairman. It is decided that he was still of the same opinion as the Local Board on the subject he had forwarded of the letter from the Guardians and Agents to London for consideration.

CHURMAN: There is a good deal in what has said.

CLERK pointed out that the Clerk in the reports only acted on the instructions of the Board.

CHURMAN said they had about 200 per-of relief on the books, and the error in the habit of giving the Clerk to go through the list and initial Knolly's contention was that amongst here might be some where the persons entitled to receive relief, although the not know it.

It was of the opinion that if the Board as officers it would be a bad job. It was pointed out that the Guardians knew of the Clerk did not.
